Let's Talk Toothpaste

Whitening toothpastes rely on abrasive ingredients that can wear enamel and increase tooth sensitivity. They don't truly whiten teeth — they mainly scrub surface stains.

Sensitive toothpastes, on the other hand, often contain potassium nitrate, which helps soothe the dentin tubules and calm sensitive teeth over time.

Some people are also sensitive to SLS, the foaming "soap" in many toothpastes, which can irritate gums and mouth tissues.

If you experience tooth sensitivity, a gentle toothpaste designed for sensitive teeth can go a long way in improving daily comfort.

At your next visit, let's talk toothpaste and tailor a recommendation to your smile!
